Biden Bombs Syria

It has been remarked that you aren't really President until you bomb something. This would certainly apply to all other war making actions: it is in the nature of America to be constantly at war; it is in our history and blood. However, in this most peaceful time ever, the problem of needing to create enemies to kill becomes that much more urgent.

> From Pentagon Press Secretary:
> "At President Biden's direction, U.S. military forces earlier this evening conducted airstrikes against infrastructure utilized by Iranian-backed militant groups in eastern Syria. These strikes were authorized in response to recent attacks against American and Coalition personnel in Iraq, and to ongoing threats to those personnel. The operation sends an unambiguous message: President Biden will act to protect American and Coalition personnel. At the same time, we have acted in a deliberate manner that aims to de-escalate the overall situation in both eastern Syria and Iraq."

No evidence has been released yet that there were attacks on Americans by Iranian groups, but when have facts ever deterred the United States of Pants Shitters from going to war? Will a war with Iran be Biden's legacy? I doubt it. But keep in mind that Democrats can get away with things Republicans can't, with the full support of the mainstream press. Famously George Bush is remembered for invading the wrong country following 9/11, but it took the first half-black President to start five more wars. We need to end the American military empire of endless war, at the very least for the sake of not giving soldiers PTSD so Raytheon can get rich.
